- English and Arabic language media searches did not identify any adverse information pertaining to the Subject Company or the three key principals.
- Human sources contacted by PSA were familiar with Kumar and Mohammed Malek, and identified them as managing director and shareholder, respectively. However, none of the sources were familiar with Khalid.

SOURCE COMMENTARY

Discreet interviews were conducted with four human sources who have industry knowledge and are positioned to speak about the reputation and activities of the Subject Company. The commentary of these individuals is reported below.

	SOURCES INTERVIEWED
Source One	Former employee who is an expatriate
Source Two	Former procurement officer who worked at the Subject Company for a year
Source Three	Former procurement officer that worked at the Subject Company for two years
Source Four	Former engineer at the Subject Company

One source provided detailed allegations of bribery and invoice tampering. While these allegations were not corroborated by any other human or media sources, the specificity and seriousness of the allegations warrant RED FLAGS for corruption and fraud.

Source One: Former Employee

The source is a former employee at Qatar Medical Company who was laid off by the Subject Company as part of a downsizing effort.

The source shared that Qatar Medical Company is managed by the CEO, Rishi Kumar ("Kumar") who is an Indian national from Kerala and is engaged in the company's day-to-day management. According to the source, Kumar tends to hire his relatives as key executives at Qatar Medical Company. He added that the head of logistics at Qatar Medical Company is the CEO's nephew, the IT head is the CEO's son in law and the key salesperson is the CEO's brother-in-law. The source did not mention Khalid Mohammed Malek.

The source made significant allegations of corruption and fraud at Qatar Medical Company. He claimed that employees at the company know of these issues that were considered as "open secrets." The first claim is that the Subject Company's sales employees have connections with end users, both procurement officers and top hospital management. He claimed that Qatar Medical Company pays 5% commissions to end users to inflate orders of medical equipment from Qatar Medical Company. He described this commission as kickbacks that were paid in the form of gifts, cash, or travel to the complicit employee. The compensation is negotiated ahead of the transaction. The source provided an example of an inventory manager from an unspecified company requested extra orders from Qatar Medical Company and then was rewarded with QAR 60,000 (USD 16,400). He added that between 2018 and 2019 the Subject Company rewarded two individuals an all-expense paid trip to Bangkok for inflating orders. The source said he has not reported any misconduct to the authorities.

A second serious allegation made by the source is that the Subject Company manually alters the type and value of products on its invoices to decrease the amount of import duties. This is done without the knowledge and consent of the authorities. The invoices would be used for airport clearance and customs. When asked about whether authorities knew about such practices, the source claimed that these instances were not reported.

When asked about which agencies these allegations pertained to, the source mentioned the Client as one of the companies whose products were involved in both the kickback scheme and the false invoicing scheme. He added that although this misconduct involved many products that Qatar Medical Company distributes, the suppliers are unaware of these alleged practices. The source added that Qatar Medical Company's sales have been increasing because of the practices described above.

The source claimed that these practices were still ongoing at the time he was laid off. We note that we have withheld the precise time of the source's tenure with the Subject Company in order to ensure his anonymity. However, we observe that the alleged time of this misconduct is sufficiently recent to warrant the most elevated levels of concern. While no other information from human or media sources corroborates the source's allegations, the specificity and seriousness of his allegations warrant RED FLAGS for corruption and fraud.

Source Two: Former Procurement Officer

The source was a former procurement office who worked for one year at Qatar Medical Company. He stated that he left the Subject Company for better opportunities. According to the source, Qatar Medical Company as one of the top three medical distributors in Qatar and considered Mustafa Medical and Ibrahim Medical as the Subject Company's competitors. He stated that the Subject Company employs between 150 and 200 people.

The source stated that the Subject Company's latest project is equipping an extension of the government-funded hospital Sidra Medical in Qatar. He stated that most of Qatar Medical Company's customers are governmental entities including Hamad Hospitals, Sidra Hospital, Qatar Foundation, and army hospitals. He stated that Rishi Kumar is the managing director and top individual who manages the entity. The source recognized Mohammed Malek and considered him as the sponsor and silent shareholder who is not active in the company's activities. The source did not mention Khalid Mohammed Malek.

The source was directly asked about any corruption or other significant issues that may have occurred at Qatar Medical Company. After a notable pause that PSA's representative interpreted as a potential indication of hesitancy to answer this question, the source claimed that he has not heard of any such issues while working at Qatar Medical Company.

Source Three: Another Former Procurement Officer

The source worked at the Subject Company for two years. He has over eight years of experience as a procurement officer. The source confirmed that Qatar Medical Company distributes medical equipment to hospital and clinics. He stated that the company enjoys a good reputation in the market but did not comment any further.

He described Kumar as the managing director and Mohammed Malek as a sponsor of the Subject Company. The source added he only saw Mohammed Malek a few times at the Subject Company's office. He added that the Subject Company has worked with NMC Healthcare, Sidra Medical, Qatar Foundation and the American Hospital in Qatar.

The source stated that he has not heard of any issues of corruption or bribery with Qatar Medical Company. He did not mention Khalid Mohammed Malek.

Source Four: Former Engineer

The source was an engineer at the Subject Company who left due to personal reasons. The source briefly explained the Subject Company distributes medical and lab equipment and that it is managed by Kumar, though he was unaware of Mohammed or Khalid's activities.

The source stated that he has not heard of any corruption, bribery, or similar issues pertaining to Qatar Medical Company.
